Code of Conduct

• It is important to remember that these forums are intended to give participants an opportunity to connect with others and to discuss new and engaging topics. Polite dispute is part of what challenges current thinking and advances patient care. Please follow the below general guidelines.

  o Understand that the discussions and comments are meant to stimulate conversation not to create contention.
  o Respect all participants and their right to an opinion.
  o Actively listen to all other discussion participants.
  o Stay within suggested time limits for responses. The moderators are responsible for ensuring everyone has a chance to participate.
  o State concisely and clearly your question or comment so others can respond appropriately.
  o Respect the privacy of patients and families when discussing a specific case.
  o Do not cause annoyance, inconvenience or needless anxiety or include materials or language likely to upset, embarrass, alarm or annoy any other person.
  o Do not promote discrimination based on race, sex, religion, nationality, disability, sexual orientation or age.
  o Use caution when discussing products and suggested uses.
  o Do not use defamatory, abusive, profane, threatening, offensive, harassing, violent or illegal materials or language.

Group Discussion

Discuss the below questions

1. What can we do, to be better represented as a specialty in team care?

2. How could we integrate guidelines between AAPD and ACPA?

3. What can ACPA do to help support the group?

4. Are new pediatric dentist graduates ready to take over cleft and craniofacial care?
